Yes. See tables in 1a for a listing of the students in our degree program.

Following are the enrollments by year:

1. For 2004 - enrollment was 5
2. For 2005 - enrollment was 7
3. For 2006 - enrollment was 5
4. For 2007 - it is expected that enrollment will be 8

The following is recommendation #3 made by the external reviewers for the enrollment and hiring of faculty for the program reported to the Coordinating Board.

"We strongly recommend the gradual development of the program, both in terms of faculty hires and student to Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board

admissions. We recommend that the number of admitted students should be proportional to the number of hired psychology faculty. Currently there are two clinical psychology faculty in the program and one social psychologist. We recommend admitting no more than five students in the first class. The plan will allow the program to be highly selective during its initial years of development when the number of highly qualified applicants may be limited. As program visibility increases the pool of highly qualified applicants is likely to increase as well and more students could be admitted. We believe that it is essential that the program consider applicants' potential for conducting independent research, a criterion for completing a dissertation, in their admission decisions."

Currently 14 students are enrolled. The expectation is to admit 8 students in our 2007 class. Faculty will become more involved in recruitment efforts and will assist in increasing the program's visibility.

Based on the reviewers' comments which placed a caution limitation on the enrollment, we can state that it has been met.

b. Have enrollment targets changed?

No, based on the recommendation made by the reviewers.

c. Have cost estimates changed?

No.

6. Doctoral program research—new (funded internally or externally) research initiated with doctoral student involvement).

Drs. Shawanda Anderson and Paula Moore were awarded an internally funded mini-grant in the amount of $20,000.

7. Institutional plans for future program evaluation.

Each year a report will be generated to show productivity in the following areas:

1. Student enrollment and progress through the program
2. Faculty productivity
3. Grants and contracts
4. Operation of the clinic

Three to five year program reviews will be conducted.

8. Other information related to program progress (please add any other pertinent information).
