

Master of Community Development Program

The Mission of the Community Development Graduate Program is to prepare students as Community Development Professionals to assist communities in rebuilding their social physical structures. The focus of this program is to provide students the opportunity to interact with communities through research and community involvement to gain insight on the issues surrounding the development of the community. This program also enables students to utilize their undergraduate degrees in helping both urban and rural communities address the values of their communities through: Land Use, Housing, Historic Preservation, Defining or Redefining the Social Fabric and Social and Physical Economic Development...
